Hotel Seattle,
Seattle, Washington,
November 24, 1913.

Pacific American Fisheries,
South Bellingham, Wash.

Gentlemen:

Replying to your favor of the 22nd instant, the contents of which have been carefully noted: It will be necessary for us, in order to make up our statistical tables in the usual manner, to make certain changes in the figures submitted in your return. If you will, therefore, advise me as to the number of the crews of the boats "Glenwood" and "Red Rover", and the wages paid them, I will deduct the amounts from the figures now credited to fishermen. In the same way with pile driver men and carpenters - their numbers and the wages paid them will be taken from "cannery employees" schedule as originally filed.

Regarding the steamer "Windber", it is not necessary to charge her services up to any individual cannery, but as the vessel is employed by a company doing business in the salmon industry of Alaska, it is essential that her value, the number of her crew, their respective races, and the wages paid them shall be included in our totals for the season just ended. As you have this information at hand it is of course preferable that it be obtained authoritatively from you rather than to estimate it arbitrarily, which otherwise will be necessary.

I am unable to furnish you with any spare copies of the form, as these are only sent out by the Washington office, and it is contrary to practice to return blanks once registered in the files. I will be very glad, however, to supply you with an abstract of the report when finally completed.

Respectfully,

Asst. Agt. Alaska Salmon Fisheries.
